

Yes it does actually

Early 2008, Queensland Canoeing Incorporated, amongst all of the Sports Federation of Queensland members were presented with the True Sport Lives Here (TSLH) initiative by the Department of Sport & Recreation. This program was developed in response to some issues arising in sport around harassment, bullying, violence etc. Initially for the benefit of clubs or organisations who may not have developed good “Member Protection Policies”, I saw a great deal of worth in this initiative as an umbrella and marketing tool to promote our own policies and particularly our “Codes of Conduct” already in place. Queensland Canoeing became one of the very first “True Sport Leaders” promoting the initiative to members and placing the logo on the website and other written material.

Queensland Canoeing was also one of the first sports to receive sponsorship of our state teams under the TSLH banner.

It is timely to promote this initiative and the codes of conduct again in this forum. I encourage all members, supporters and families to espouse to these values so we can continue to promote our sport for all the right reasons. I am sure you have all seen the kinds of breaches of behaviour codes in sporting events or on television. All governments and sports are trying to address these problems to varying degrees. Our advantage is that we are acting proactively to promote an existing good culture where others have to react to unsavoury incidents in the media.

Please promote these attached “Codes of Conduct” around the club and in the sport so we can continue to promote the culture of canoeing as it exists.
